Why Maya prices it this way

“Every video is filmed just for you. A few minutes on screen takes me about an hour to set up, film and edit, so I price by the minute.”

In Maya's own words.

Rules for this state

- Order on Review: line items, total, resale or exclusive notice, pricing note. Notices about this video come before the creator’s general note.
- Same heading and “In Maya’s own words” line as the entrance (design 20 A), so it never reads as platform copy.
- The note comes from the catalog version the draft is quoted against, not the latest one. If a newer version is published, design 18’s price-change state shows first.
- No note (pricingNote: null): the whole block is omitted, with no empty heading.
- Shown as plain text: line breaks kept, no links or formatting rendered.

What should Maya call you?

First name or nickname

Just a first name or nickname. No surname or contact details.

Says your name throughout+$15

The field opens inside whichever name option is picked. Review stays blocked with “Add the name Maya should use” until it’s saved.

🔒 Saved to your account

Change name

Once saved, the option labels use the name. Picking “No name” keeps it on the draft (the Director still uses it in chat) but drops it from the video.

What should Maya call you?

Sam 07700 900123

🚫 Maya can’t use this name. Use just a first name or nickname, with no phone number, email or links.

Server check on save. Contact details map to solicitation. Any other hard-list hit shows design 13’s blocked message with that label, and a minors hit follows the safety-case path, never this inline message.

Too long can’t happen: the field stops at 40 characters. The server still rejects longer input with the same message as B1’s hint.

The name is what the fan chose, not a verified identity. The creator’s request detail shows it as “Call them: Sam”.

C1 · SCRIPT ADDED, STILL EMPTY · C2 · REMOVE IT? · C3 · REMOVED

Your own script$30

Write the lines you’d like Maya to say.

✍ Write your script, or remove this option0 / 3,000

🗑 Remove script

An empty script saves (it’s a draft) but can’t be sent: Review’s Send is disabled with this same message. Removing an empty script needs no confirmation.

Remove your script?

What you’ve written (128 characters) will be deleted, and $30 comes off your total. This can’t be undone.

Delete script

Keep script

Focus starts on Keep script. Escape = keep. Also asked when the script option is removed from the Scene Card, by a template switch, or by accepting a Director suggestion that drops it.

✔ Script removed

Your total is now $225.

🔒 “Maya may resell it later” is available again, because nothing personal is in this video now. “Just for you” stays selected.

The total is the server’s new quote; until it arrives, design 18’s saving state shows. The second message appears only when neither the name nor the script remains. The rights choice never changes by itself.

D · NAME OR SCRIPT PLUS RESALE, REJECTED BY THE SERVER

🔒 Pick one: your name, or resale

This video says your name, so Maya can’t sell it to anyone else. Nothing was changed and nothing was sent.

Rules for this state

- The normal UI can’t reach this: design 20 B disables resale. It appears when a save, quote or send returns PERSONALISED_VIDEO_RESALE_FORBIDDEN, for example after an edit in another window, an old saved draft, or a template.
- Shown at the top of the Scene Card (or above Send on Review), replacing the normal save status. Send stays disabled until the fan picks.
- Wording follows the conflicting item ids the server returns: “says your name”, “uses your script”, or both (“Remove my name and script”, which then asks C2).
- Both amounts are server quotes for each resolution. If a quote is missing, show the choice without an amount rather than calculating one.
- “Nothing was changed” is true: the server rejected the write and the last saved draft stands.

E · PROHIBITED_ROLES LABEL, IN THE ENTRANCE LIST AND THE BLOCKED MESSAGE

TODAY (DESIGN 13)

~~School, student, childlike, family or step-family roles~~

Misses babysitter or nanny, someone else’s partner or a neighbour, and named characters. “Childlike” now routes to minors, whose label already covers it.

OPTION 1 · RECOMMENDED

- School, babysitter or family roles, including step-family
- Playing someone else’s partner, or a named character from a film, show, game or anime

Your message includes something that’s never allowed on Maya Atelier: playing someone else’s partner, or a named character from a film, show, game or anime. Nothing was shared with Maya.

Two list lines, one key: in the blocked message, show the line that matched if the rules layer knows it, otherwise both. Concrete words fans recognise.

OPTION 2 · ONE SHORT LINE

- Roles as a relative, a babysitter, someone else’s partner or a named character

Your message includes something that’s never allowed on Maya Atelier: roles as a relative, a babysitter, someone else’s partner or a named character. Nothing was shared with Maya.

Keeps design 13’s one line per key, but drops “school”, the word fans are most likely to type.

✔ Optional line under the hard list (either option)

Adult roles like a nurse, a police officer or a vampire are fine, if Maya offers them.

Heads off the obvious “so what can I ask for?” question. Owner decides whether to add it.
